

Klarius Karoq's the aftermarket with new emission control components

25 June 2025

Klarius Products has announced a number of new emission control components for nine different brands to further support the UK and European aftermarket automotive sector. The 19 parts released all meet or exceed the performance of the OE products and are estimated to cover in excess of 205,000 vehicles in the UK and over 1,100,000 in Europe.

Klarius designs products to fit practically every vehicle brand on the road today. The latest release includes emission control components for Audi, Citroën, Dacia, Ford, Fiat, Honda, Mini and Seat. Further, the Škoda Karoq Compact SUV (2017) is supported with the introduction of a bespoke built exhaust system.

Since its launch, the Škoda Karoq has become one of the greatest success stories of the last ten years for the Volkswagen Group. The combination of reliability, practicality, flexible use of internal space and competitive pricing made the car popular with fans of the no-nonsense Czech brand. While some of the competition offer slightly more dynamic driving experiences, the Karoq has always been praised for how well it adapts to varying demands of family life.

So, for a car designed with family in mind, it makes sense that the aftermarket offers owners the same peace of mind. The Klarius exhaust system was bespoke designed and tested specifically for the Karoq to meet or exceed the performance of the OE system.

Fast Facts About the Škoda Karoq:

- Karoq is derived from native Alaskan language, and combines the words for 'car' and 'arrow'
- It was voted the most beautiful car in its class (compact SUV) by readers of Germany's 'Auto Motor und Sport' magazine
- It proved so popular that in 2018 there was a waiting list of over 10 months for new car orders

The introduction of the latest emissions control components to the Klarius product portfolio means that Karoq owners across the UK and Europe can continue to enjoy family outings with total confidence. There are over 11,000 parts in the Klarius Products catalogue and next-day delivery on orders places before 5:50pm, helping to keep UK drivers on the road.
